A Legacy Worth Preserving

The Alden House Historic Site in Duxbury, Massachusetts, stands on the very land granted to John and Priscilla Alden in 1627—America's most enduring love story, immortalized by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his Courtship of Myles Standish. Designated a National Historic Landmark in 2008, the House itself remains under the continuous stewardship of the Alden family through the Alden Kindred of America. In 2026, Alden National Historic Landmark was enhanced by the opening of a new, interpretive Center for Living History. When you join the Alden Legacy Circle, you become a guardian of the entire site, along with its irreplaceable story—for generations to come.

John & Priscilla Alden — America's Enduring Story

In 1620, John Alden arrived on the Mayflower as the ship's cooper—among the youngest of the Pilgrim company. He fell in love with Priscilla Mullins, and together they built a home in Duxbury before 1630, raised ten children, and helped shape Plymouth Colony. The house that bears their legacy has remained in family hands for nearly four centuries. The Alden Kindred of America carries that covenant forward—and invites you to be part of it.
